Mindfulness meditation is now commonly recommended as an adjunct to psychotherapy to reduce stress and regulate emotions. For over 40 years, Hakomi has pioneered an active, dyadic, and exploratory use of mindfulness within the session to quickly and safely access “core material.”

Core Material consists of the implicit memories and unconscious “blueprints” that organize our lives invisibly and automatically. Hakomi uses powerful experiential techniques to re-wire these organizers to promote core-level transformation.
Five foundational “Principles” are essential to our approach:

- MINDFULNESS: the role and quality of consciousness
- UNITY: the systemic interconnectedness of everything
- MIND-BODY HOLISM: the skills of bridging that divide
- ORGANICITY: guidance by the knowledge from within
- NON-VIOLENCE: the art of dealing with “resistance”

The Foundation Training teaches helping professionals how to embody the spirit and attitude of these principles.

To do this, participants are required to make a heartfelt commitment to their growth, both personal and professional. Participants of the Foundation Training will learn how the principles are used in Hakomi to support the gentle unfolding of each client's growing and becoming.

What’s special about our 4-year Comprehensive Hakomi Therapist Training

Students receive a thorough and substantial education on the Hakomi Method in a format that supports their personal growth on many levels.

The Tenets of mindfulness combined with a regular practice shift the student's understanding of psychotherapy and how to “be” as a therapist. Our views on transformation, the relationship, consciousness, and narcissistic wounding are not just theoretical underpinnings of our mindful approach. They are at the core of what it means to guide others in full-human beingness.
The learning environment

- We aim to create a dynamic and safe learning environment for our students.

- We believe that different minds learn in different ways and that various modalities are needed for meaningful learning to take place. Our training – whether during the in-person blocks or the online webinars - provides a combination of lectures on up-to-date psychological theories, experiential activities, practical demonstrations, and group reflections.

- We look at learning as a transformative process, and we acknowledge the quality of interpersonal relationships as a central factor in fostering it.

- We strive to meet every participant with curiosity, kindness, and deep respect.

- We balance our planned training activities and learning goals with our group members' needs and the unfolding process.

- We are committed to inclusion and celebrate diversity in all its possible manifestations.
Training objectives

- Learn to embody the Hakomi principles to support deep inner work. Apply mindfulness in an active, dyadic, and exploratory way.

- Recognize how the body stores implicit memories and reflects core beliefs.

- Be able to enter a state of “Loving Presence” to gain the cooperation of the client’s unconscious.

- Develop Hakomi-specific communication skills to “manage consciousness” and explore intrapersonal processes.

Who can benefit from Hakomi?

Hakomi is effective with individuals, couples, families, and groups.

It integrates well with a variety of modalities and is used successfully by counselors, psychologists, psychotherapists, social workers, pastoral counselors, coaches, expressive arts therapists, bodyworkers, physicians, psychiatrists, and allied health professionals who work with clients one-on-one.
The format: training dates and times

While we value the deep interpersonal learning that occurs in live events, we redesigned the format of our Comprehensive Hakomi Therapist Training to meet the challenges of the Covid era and climate change. Our priority has been to preserve the limbic connection and loving-kindness at the forefront of Hakomi therapy while reducing travel requirements. The new hybrid format combines live and virtual teaching segments for these reasons.

The Foundation Module, as well as the Advanced Module, combines two 8-day residential segments annually in Mallorca with ten 4-hour online webinars scheduled for Mondays.

About online learning

Our online format is flexible and dynamic. We avoid relying on static, didactic lectures. Instead, we offer more interactive learning forms, such as case-based instruction, demonstrations, practice exercises, and cooperative learning.

We often change the virtual classroom’s energy by splitting the group into smaller breakout rooms, where participants can be more actively involved in exploring and practicing. Rather than looking at technology as an obstacle to overcome, we are creative about its possibilities.
